

Placing an Order with Eddie Current

All Eddie Current gear is an investment in audio art. Each piece of equipment is made especially for its collector, built in small runs that are announced throughout the year to allow affordability without sacrificing individuality and distinction. The Eddie Current brand is designed by former Moth Audio engineer Craig Uthus, who has established a reputation for creating state-of-the-art audio designs with superb sound.

When you place an order with Eddie Current you are special ordering a piece of audio gear that averages 8 weeks to manufacture once the run is full. (For new product launches or delays at assembly the schedule will take longer.) Customer alterations and follow up will also add to the schedule time.

Current price of the amps are listed on each description page. All tubes provided by Eddie Current are tested with your amp. Placing an order requires a 50% deposit. Upon completion of the amp, final payment is due with shipping costs.

Deposits are refundable in special circumstances; however, the deposit does go to pay for your amplifier parts and deposit refunds are contingent upon the sale of your amplifier.

Eddie Current Warranty: All Eddie Current-made products come with a 5-year warranty for parts and labor. Warranty does not include shipping costs. If the repair is due to customer damage or tubes not supplied by Eddie Current, repairs will be charged parts and labor, which will be quoted before work is performed. The warranty is not transferable.

Deposits are accepted through check, e-check, cash, money order, and we will take Paypal – please add 3% domestic and 4% international fee to Paypal payment or we can add them to final payment – For bank money transfer (please email for routing info) there will also be the bank fees added to the order.
